WILLIAM COLEMAN JR.

William Coleman was born at his Grandmother Clotworthy's home in Heber City, Utah, on April 8, 1869, a son of William and Mary Clotworthy Coleman. He was reared in Midway and educated in the elementary school there, completing his education at the Wasatch Stake Academy. He stayed at his Uncle Thomas Clotworthy's home while going to school, working for him to pay his expenses. Years later he bought into the sheep business with him and became a very successful businessman in all of his undertakings. He was a co-owner in the Wasatch Livery Stable and Pikes Peak Garage with Labon Hylton. He served four years as city councilman, vice president and director of the Bank of Heber, and also a director of the Commercial Bank and Heber Mercantile. He was a generous donator to the building of the Third Ward meetinghouse, Wasatch Stake Seminary and Welfare Farm.

William Coleman married Agnes Turner on December 1, 1896, in Heber. She was a daughter of John and Agnes S. Montgomery Turner. Immediately after the beautiful wedding, that was given them in the Old Turner Hall, they left to make their home in Park City, where William was employed at the Ontario Mine. They took their many gifts to a little home waiting for the bride and groom. Their joy was brief, however, for soon after moving into it, the house and everything in it burned to the ground. They then moved back to Heber City, where they spent the rest of their lives.

To this couple were born two children: Delbert Turner Coleman, who married Sylvia Johanna Neilson, and Ora Mae Coleman, who married Wendell C. Sevy.
